HOME COMPUTING JOURNAL

Dear Home Computer Magazine Subscriber:

On behalf of Home Computing Journal, I would like to welcome you as a former subscriber to Home Computer Magazine. Home Computer Magazine (HCM) ceased publication with the Volume 5, Number 6 issue. We will be fulfilling the balance of your HCM subscription with Home Computing Journal. You will receive a number of issues equivalent to the value remaining on your original magazine and/or media subscription(s).

Home Computing Journal is a quarterly publication that is delivered to your door with a computer disk of valuable software. Many of the best features of the old Home Computer Magazine are now being incorporated into the Journal.

You can expect Journal software to reach new and exciting areas—going far beyond even HCM. Artificial intelligence, data base management, interactive educational simulations, and specialized high-level languages for specific fields like real estate, personal investing, creative writing, computer-assisted design, and desktop publishing are just some of our future Journal offerings. The sky's the limit!

As mentioned, a computer disk is part of your Journal subscription. This means that we need to know what type of computer you have. Please fill in the enclosed self-addressed card with your correct address and subscriber number (read from the label on the outer envelope), and indicate only one choice of disk format for your subscription. If you fail to notify us immediately with the enclosed card, we will not be able to fulfill the remainder of your HCM subscription with Home Computing Journal.

So, welcome to our exciting world of Home Computing Journal. We're sure that you will enjoy your upcoming issues.

Sincerely,

Robert T. Karau
Subscription Director
